In this issue: *Aviations open to public *ABEF enters Pre-Development *Re-cap of 21st Alaska Eagle Festival *Update on human skull *ABEF has e-bird

Pre-Development for new raptor endings begins

As you can see from the above, the ABEF has worked towards the development of the new aviaries. The project has been approved by the state of Alaska and the federal government. The project is funded through the sale of raffle tickets and donations from the public. The ABEF has raised over $15,000 towards the project so far. The project is expected to be completed in 2017.

Avian open for viewing

For those of you who have not visited the ABEF in recent years, we would like to invite you to come and see the new aviaries. The ABEF is open every day from 10am to 5pm. The aviaries are located on the Chilkat Bald Eagle Preserve and can be reached by taking the Haines Highway (also known as Chilkat Bald Eagle Preserve Road) north of Haines for about 15 miles. The ABEF is located on the left side of the road, just past a large metal gate.

More human bones found in dirt pile

As you may have heard, the ABEF has discovered a new human bone in a dirt pile near the ABEF property. The bone is believed to be a part of a skull. The ABEF has contacted the state medical examiner to determine the cause of death. The ABEF has also contacted the state archaeologist to determine if the bone is a cultural artifact.

Highlights from the 21st Alaska Bald Eagle Festival

The 21st annual Alaska Bald Eagle Festival was held from mid-November to early December. The event was a huge success, drawing over 5,000 visitors to the Chilkat Bald Eagle Preserve. The festival featured various presentations by local and national experts, as well as activities for all ages. The festival was a great way to learn about the importance of bald eagles and the need to protect their habitat.

More human bones found in dirt pile

As you may have heard, the ABEF has discovered a new human bone in a dirt pile near the ABEF property. The bone is believed to be a part of a skull. The ABEF has contacted the state medical examiner to determine the cause of death. The ABEF has also contacted the state archaeologist to determine if the bone is a cultural artifact.

Highlights from the 21st Alaska Bald Eagle Festival

The 21st annual Alaska Bald Eagle Festival was held from mid-November to early December. The event was a huge success, drawing over 5,000 visitors to the Chilkat Bald Eagle Preserve. The festival featured various presentations by local and national experts, as well as activities for all ages. The festival was a great way to learn about the importance of bald eagles and the need to protect their habitat.